Ronkley: All Ronkley's from far and near, big and small, and helped by Hairy Warts, moved into the land of no name to help stamp out the nameless. So let it be known far and wide, that the nameless ones of no name shall hereafter and forever be named Anonymous, and their homeland, The Land of the Anonymous.
Moose Factory: Sorry, but the Bogeyman got there first!

North Luton: "A classic case of child reversion nexus." So commented an expert North Luton child psychologist, on the drawings by Mr. Leeder in no. 6 of The Zine.... He claims that "Johnny boy just hasn't quite grown up. This is especially borne out in the failure of Mr. Leeder to complete a simple task such as drawing a number of circles without making a mistake. Also note the vast multitude of larger circles compared to small ones. This shows that John hasn't achieved big things in life but is instead drawing big circles to compensate. His offer to demonstrate the use of the circle-maker is most amusing. Very childish. It is as if a child was explaining to an adult how to turn the TV on. Yes, a severe case of child reversion nexus.... Would you excuse me, please - my mommy is calling and says I have to eat lunch and clean up my room."

Moose Factory: If I were mature, would I be sitting at this typewriter instead of watching the Olympics? Come to think of it, that's just what I'm going to do right now.

CHIMO!
